About the Series

Forums are presented as part of the 2008 MetLife Foundation National Arts Forum Series. In the coming year, forums will take place in 11 cities nationwide and will investigate new frameworks for cultural leadership. Excerpts from each forum will be posted on the Americans for the Arts website, www.AmericansForTheArts.org, and a forum will take place in June at the Americans for the Arts 2008 Annual Convention in Philadelphia. Forums are produced by program partners of Arts & Business Council of Americans for the Arts, which is focused on developing private-sector support for the arts within the organization's broader mission of advancing the arts in America.

MetLife Foundation

About MetLife Foundation: MetLife Foundation was established by MetLife to carry on its long-standing tradition of corporate contributions and community involvement. Grants are made to support health, educational, civic and cultural organizations and programs. Recognizing the vital role the arts play in building communities and educating young people, MetLife Foundation provides grants to cultural organizations throughout the country. Support is emphasized for opportunities to bring cultural experiences to wider audiences and for projects with large and diverse audiences that help promote greater understanding among different cultures and bring communities together. For more information about the Foundation, please visit its website at www.metlife.org.
